Also featuring Jill Schoonjans as June Carter, Amanda Stone and Louise Masters as the Carter Sisters, along with the JC Horns, all aspects of Cash's life are covered with impeccable taste.

The show takes the audience from the 1950s to 2002 and all stops in between.

All the greatest hits are included, along with songs from the latest album Out Among The Stars – all accom-

Patients thank hospital staff

HUNDREDS of people turned out in east London in January to mark Holocaust Memorial Day.

A service was held at the Holocaust War Memorial in Coronation Gardens, Main Road, Romford.

People remembered victims of the Holocaust and genocides in Cambodia, Rwanda, Bosnia and Darfur.

Holocaust survivor Janine Webberspoke of her own personal experiences.

Following the service, a reception was held where a new memorial, dedicated to all victims crimes, was consecrated at Romford and District Synagogue.

Students at Havering Sixth Form College set up a social action campaign, in February, to tackle cyberbullying.

Jess Wood, and Katie Perry, both 18, helped to devise the Bye the Bully campaign and set up a website.

In April, the British Heart Foundation warned that the number of residents in east London being killed by air pollution each year could be higher than first thought.

Deadly compounds found in the air – already linked to heart attacks, respiratory illness and cot deaths – were also connected to strokes.

Scientists at the University of Edinburgh found that people exposed to toxic PM2.5 particles, spread by car exhaust fumes, are at increased risk of hospitalisation or death from stroke.

BHF said hundreds of residents die in east London from strokes every year.

A social worker was strangled with her twin daughters in Chadwell Heath in May.

Shighi Rethishkumar, 37, and her two daughters Niya and Neha, both 13, were discovered by police at a house in Grove Road on May 12.

Shighi's husband Pullarkattil Rethishkumar, 44, died from hanging after his body was discovered at Woodford Reservoir, Walthamstow, by police at 8.15am on May 13.

In June, a petition was signed by 3,000 residents and presented to thank staff at Queen's Hospital.

Around 100 members of staff, including Matthew Hopkins, chief executive of Barking, Havering and Redbridge University

Hospitals NHS Trust which runs Queen's, gathered to accept the petition.

The overall A-level pass rate increased at schools across east London by more than three per cent, in August.

The results saw 99.8 per cent of passes in A-level exams, compared to last year's figure of 96.3 per cent.

In October, Rainham Hall, the 18th century manor house built by sea merchant John Harle, was opened to the public by the National Trust after a two year project costing £2.5m.

In November, a Waltham Forest teacher who almost lost her life to a stroke became the voice of a national campaign.

Teacher Phillipa Haslehurst, 48, of Essex

Road, Chingford, urged people to learn the symptoms of strokes through media campaigns and discussions at schools a year after she suffered one getting ready for work at Leverton School, Waltham Abbey.

And in December campaigners warned of plans to reroute flight corridors over Leyton, Leytonstone and Wanstead every three minutes.

The Civil Aviation Authority gave the go-ahead for London City Airport to use new technology to create a much narrower flight corridor over the areas.

But John Stewart, chairman of protest group HACAN East, said it was looking into legally challenging the decision.
